Organizes a Symposium
on

Nurturing healthy adolescent development through parental involvement

14 December, 2023 at 10.45 am

Mode: Online

This symposium is a part of an on-going project:
“Operational support for Roll out of Parenting of Adolescents Program” conducted by KKCE in partnership with UNICEF (India office).

About Symposium

Adolescent development is critical for a thriving society. The transitional life-phase of adolescence is a critical period influencing physical, cognitive, and socioemotional growth.

Parents play a crucial role in shaping this journey. This symposium, organized by KKCE, focuses on enhancing positive parenting practices for adolescent children in India.

Parents serve as essential guides, providing emotional support, fostering decision-making skills, and contributing to responsible behavior.

The symposium aims to bring together researchers, practitioners, and experts to share insights, discuss challenges, and explore innovative methods for empowering both adolescents and parents.

Join us to learn, discuss, share as to how researchers and practitioners can contribute to a future where adolescents thrive and positively impact society.

Target audience:

Practitioners, Policy makers, Parents concerned with healthy adolescent development
